An investigation was made of the preparation and testing of (1) 2-stage sodium-calcium cooks, weak alkali in the first stage and acid in the second; (2) Sodium-bisulfite cooks; and (3) mild conventional calcium sulfite cooks (grease-proof pulp cooks). At the same chlorine number (lignin content) the 2-stage sodium-calcium cooks give a 3 to 3.5% higher yield of both unbleached and bleached

The unbleached magnesium-bisulfite pulp is characterized by high yield and high strength. When bleached with the sequence chlorine-alkali-chlorine dioxide, a large part of the high yield is lost. The optimum yield of bleached pulp is about 50% compared with 47 to 48% for sulfur dioxide-calcium-sulfite pulp. Magnesiumbisulfite pulp retains its good strength after bleaching.
The bleached pulp is somewhat more difficult to beat than the unbleached, but it has the same high breaking and burst strength as the unbleached pulp, which is com-

In this essay, the theories on tearing strength are reviewed, with emphasis on the theory of Van den Akker.
The factors determining the tearing strength are of two types: the fibre properties, such as fibre length and strength, and the paper microstructural factors.
Among the latter, fibre bindings and paper extensibility are considered to be of particular importance. The influence of these two types of factors on paper tearing strength is illustrated by some simple experiments designed to check the validity of current theories. The
